Abdul Jabbar has taught English for 36 years on a full-time basis at City College of San Francisco, including visiting professorship at University of California, Berkeley. Recipient of a Fulbright scholarship and two National Endowment for the Humanities awards, he received his Ph.D. in English from Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, and has several publications to his credit. For humanitarian work, he chairs the Board of Central Asia Institute, a U.S. non-profit that promotes literacy, especially for women, by opening more than 130 schools in the remote regions of Pakistan and Afghanistan.

"The most original and creative literature textbook I have ever seen."

"I am most impressed by the promise of meeting students' needs in their struggle to move from summarizing to discussing style and technique."

"The tone is quite down-to-earth and engaging. I believe students will appreciate that."

"Step by step instructions" are by far the best rubric I have ever seen for writing a critical essay – brilliant, succinct, essential, and clear."

"The selections in this section are extremely well chosen for college freshmen. I believe these selections will capture their interest, expand their vocabulary and jump-start their imagination."

"... a brilliant, innovative work that truly makes a textual apparatus an all-in-one pedagogical asset. The text's focus on writing as a discovery tool is its greatest quality, followed by the diversity and quantity of readings."

"I have never seen this level of instructional specificity in an introductory text before."
